EXAMINETICS ADDS TO OFFERING WITH ACQUISITION OF SAFETY CONSULTING FIRM, EHS RISK MANAGEMENT

Leading occupational health testing company will now offer safety consulting, corporate safety programs, and industrial hygiene services

OVERLAND PARK, KS, January 6, 2025 - Examinetics, the nation's leading provider of onsite occupational health solutions for medical screening and surveillance, today announced its acquisition of EHS Risk Management, a technology-enabled safety consulting firm.

Examinetics has extensive experience developing and delivering regulatory compliance testing services nationwide, such as hearing conservation and respiratory protection programs. EHS Risk Management offers a broad safety and compliance portfolio to enhance safe work practices and reduce risk. Their technology enabled offering includes onsite auditing and assessments, guidance on OSHA standards, safety training, and industrial hygiene monitoring and sampling. EHS Risk Management's differentiated value proposition is supported by its subscription-based fractional safety manager program intended to cut Workers Compensation costs and improve accident prevention, facilitated by the company's online portal.

"This acquisition enhances Examinetics' safety capabilities, continuing our mission of helping our clients keep America's workers safe, healthy, and productive," said Gary Gluzberg, CEO, Examinetics. "Adding safety consulting services to our existing employee health portfolio allows us to meet more of the OSHA testing and compliance needs of our growing base of 3,500 clients. I am very excited to have the EHS Risk Management team join the Examinetics group."

The addition of these new services allows Examinetics to better address the increasingly complex needs of EH&S professionals and creates one of the most complete safety and compliance testing portfolios in the industry.

EHS Risk Management President and Owner, Jim Testo, added "Our team of consultants and I are thrilled to combine with the Examinetics team. We strongly believe that our consulting and technology expertise combined with their multiple service delivery platforms and technology development capabilities will help us make a real impact to the safety professionals of our, now, collective client base."

This acquisition follows Examinetics' recent launch of Salux™, a tablet-based audiometer that enables on-demand hearing testing and training. The company will continue to pursue further investments that position the company as the best choice in the safety industry for innovation, reliability, and convenience.
